Executive Director's Report	2nd Quarter Progress on Objectives Report Colleen Miller, Executive Director, talked about the “pipeline” problem of individuals with mental illness in jails waiting to be transferred to mental health hospitals for treatment and the hospitals not discharging people in a timely manner. VOPA is addressing this issue at every point of the process. VOPA has seen a positive influence of Crisis Intervention Training of police officers in diverting individuals with mental illness away from jails. Ms. Miller discussed mental health courts being piloted in Norfolk as another method to diverting individuals with mental illness away from jail. This pilot mental health court allows individuals to retain their due process rights. VOPA is also addressing issues inside hospitals where there are involuntary treatment orders. VOPA learned there was a reluctance from providers to go back to court to have the involuntary treatment order lifted in instances where a person has regained capacity.

Litigation Report

VOPA represented two defendants to enforce court orders that required the defendants to be transferred from jail to an appropriate hospital to receive mental health treatment to restore their competence to stand trial. In both instances, VOPA filed a Motion for Show Cause Summons against the Commissioner of the Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Services (DBHDS) asserting that the Commissioner was in contempt of court for his extended failure to carry out the court's order. The Commissioner quickly transferred the defendants to state operated mental health hospitals. VOPA plans to represent another fifteen defendants in similar cases and file a Motion for Show Cause Summons against the Commissioner in each case.
